Celebrated New York architecture and interior design firm CetraRuddy has made its debut in West Palm Beach with the reveal of Lumaire, a sleek and modern luxury rental tower. Known for designing homes for high-profile names like Harry Styles and Jennifer Lawrence at 443 Greenwich, CetraRuddy partnered with DesignBAR to create an elegant residential experience that brings metropolitan sophistication to West Palm's Clear Lake District.

Lumaire's 457 residences feature floor-to-ceiling windows, European-inspired kitchens, and wide plank flooring, allowing natural light to flood the chic interiors. Thoughtfully designed with elegant quartz countertops and spacious private outdoor areas, the homes offer breathtaking sunrise-to-sunset views of both the city and water. The residences were meticulously staged by Steven G, adding a serene and modern touch to complement the sophisticated materials used throughout.

The tower boasts over 40,000 square feet of world-class amenities, including an elevated pool deck with cabana beds, a 90-foot pool, and bocce ball court. Residents also have access to a fully equipped fitness center, game room, and lounge, creating a lifestyle centered around quiet luxury and contemporary elegance.
